Security Council Debates India, Pakistan Action

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. UPI—The Security Council debated today whether to threaten India and Pakistan with sanctions that could include military action by the United Nations.

Hanging heavy over the Saturday session of the 11-nation group was Red China's threat to move actively into the hostilities concerning the disputed state of Kashmir.

Peking charged that Russia and the United States are supporting India in the subcontinental war, but Indian education ministers M. C. Chagla said in a council speech: "I charge that Pakistan launched this war with the idea that China would be behind her."

Many diplomats here believed Red China's threat to step into the hostilities should be taken at face value, but others asked the Peking ultimatum to India as a political bluff intended principally to keep Pakistan from accepting cease-fire overtures.

Chagla presented India's position to the Council Friday. Law Minister S. M. Safar was expected to speak for Pakistan at this morning's meeting.

The Council members took Friday afternoon to consider privately a five-point plan proposed by Secretary General U Thant, who acknowledged his failure to achieve a cease-fire in his peace mission to Rawalpindi and New Delhi. He suggested that the Council order India and Pakistan to cease hostilities immediately. Consider what "assistance" it might provide to insure observance of a cease fire.

Study means of "assisting" both parties to pull all armed forces back to positions they held before hostilities began Aug. 5.

Request Pakistani President Mohammad Ayub Khan and Indian Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri to meet in a friendly country for talks, perhaps with the assistance of a small committee to be named by the Council.

Delay Urged By Some Catholics

VATICAN CITY UPI—Some delegates to the Ecumenical Council are urging that a proposed delegation on the Roman Catholic church's approach to modern problems should be delayed until next year, it was reported today.

Council sources said the delay was proposed at a meeting Thursday night at the joint committee of churchmen and laymen which is drafting the declaration, which deals with such issues as nuclear weapons, birth control and relations between church and state.

The council is expected to begin its debate on the controversial declaration Monday.

Some councilmen favor delay to allow adequate time for revisions without unduly prolonging the current session of the council, the sources said.

This report aroused questions as to whether the Council session which opened Tuesday actually will wind up its work. Pope Paul has said it will, and Council officials say the calendar for the session now runs only until Dec. 8, although no closing date has been officially announced.

Federal Hearing Resumes Monday

INDIANAPOLIS UPI—The federal bankruptcy hearing in the Dobich Securities Corp. case will resume Monday here with the return of several salesmen for the firm to the witness stand.

Donald Buttrey, trustee for 579 creditors who bought nearly $3 million in stock which they didn't receive, said he is hopeful of retaining as assets some $50,000 worth of stock certificates in other companies which were found in Dobich's offices.

These certificates had been transferred by their owners as payment for stock in Midwestern Life Insurance Co. which they purchased from Dobich. They still were in the possession of Michael Dobich, the owner and president, when he was killed in a helicopter crash July 10.

Federal bankruptcy referee Paul Pfister took under advisement Friday several reclamation petitions filed by the persons who had traded these stocks to Dobich but did not get their Midwestern certificates in exchange.

Additional reclamation petitions are expected Monday.

Erhard's Party Has Slight Edge

BONN, UPI—The West German parliamentary election campaign closed today. Political experts gave Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's Christian Democrats a slight edge over West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt's Social Democrats in Sunday's voting.

Erhard ended his campaign with a speech in his home constituency of Ulm in Southern Germany birthplace, Luebeck, to rest and visit his mother.

The Sunday voting begins at 8 a.m. and lasts to 6 p.m. about 80 per cent of 80.5 million eligible voters are expected to turn out to choose 496 members of the lower house of parliament Bundestag.

The new Bundestag will meet Oct. 19 to name the chancellor. Erhard predicted Friday that the job would remain in his hands. The only public opinion poll to publish a prediction on the eve of the election supported his confidence.

The Wickert Institution of Tubingen forecast Erhard's Christian Democrats would capture 47 per cent of the seats in the next Bundestag, with the Social Democrats winning 45 per cent and the Free Democrats—a small liberal party in coalition with the Christian Democrats since 1961—to get 8 per cent.

Consider Request

WASHINGTON UPI—The United States today considered an Indian request for assurances of support in the event of a Red Chinese attack on India's borders.

Indian Ambassador B. K. Nehru, it was learned, has put this question to the Johnson Administration: What would the United States do in case of such Chinese aggression?

The State Department and the White House maintained public silence on the answer.

ROME UPI—The Italian Seamen's Union Thursday asked for "war risk bonuses" for the crews of ships sailing in the waters of Viet Nam, Pakistan and India.

Two Captured In Gun Battle

EL PASO, Tex. UPI—Two armed fugitives, who cut a path of terror, violence and crime stretching hundreds of miles, were captured Friday after a last-ditch gun battle with five Mexican policemen.

The men, Robert J. Fernandez, 30, of Chicago, and Thomas G. Palmer, 20, of Gardena, Calif., were apprehended as they attempted to slip by a Mexican customs station on foot, 15 miles south of this border city.

Five Juarez, Mex., police officers spotted the men and sped after them. As the officers approached, Fernandez opened fire.

"I'll kill all you cops," he yelled.

As the officers jumped from their car, Fernandez wounded one of them in the leg with a stolen .38 caliber revolver.

The other policeman quickly surrounded the car and both Fernandez and Palmer dropped their weapons and surrendered.

Veteran Actor Is Improving

HOLLYWOOD UPI—Veteran actor and Academy Award winner Spencer Tracy remained on the serious list today but continued to show improvement after a relapse from major surgery.

The 65-year-old Tracy underwent the surgery Sept. 4 for removal of a non-cancerous prostate growth. He had entered Good Samaritan Hospital Aug. 31 for tests.

November Draft Call Is 36,450

WASHINGTON UPI—The Defense Department today issued a draft call for the induction of 36,450 men into the Army, Navy and Marine Corps during November as part of the Viet Nam build-up.

The quota, somewhat higher than the 35,000 a month level set by President Johnson last July 26, will mark the first time the Marines have had to use the draft since the Korean war.

The Marines will draw 4,050 men from the November draft. The Navy had previously called for 4,600 draftees in October, and will take another 4,000 in November. The Army will get 28,400 from the November total.

In another manpower development Thursday, the Defense Department announced it will hire 60,000 civilians to free military personnel for combat duty. This is not expected to affect the draft total immediately, officials indicated.

Three Arrested By City Police

An Indiana University student and two local residents were arrested by city police Friday evening and early this morning.

Clarence Sligh, 44, city, was picked up at the court house and lodged in the Putnam County jail by Officer John Stevens at 7:45 p. m. Friday.

Sligh was booked for public intoxication.

At 12:05 this morning, Robert Fern, 23, Bloomington, and James H. York, 19, city, were arrested by Officer Alva Huble.

Both were charged with speeding in a posted zone on Ind. 240.

Fern also faces a second charge for failure to have an operator's license.

Yanks, Cong In Terrific Fighting

SAIGON UPI—U.S. forces were reported engaged tonight in the fiercest fighting they have yet encountered in South Viet Nam's jungled central highlands.

A U.S. military spokesman said paratroopers of the 101st Airborne Division came under heavy mortar and small arms fire shortly after they started a two-pronged advance at 8 a.m. in the Con River Valley northeast of An Khe.

As of 2:30 p.m., heavy fighting was continuing.

The U.S. forces, moved into the area on foot and by helicopters, were meeting the largest communist force that had faced the airborne troopers who have been clearing the jungles along route 19 for about a month.

U.S. jet fighter bombers were bombing and strafing red positions in support of the ground troops. Army and Marine helicopters also were taking part in the battle.

They are: Bainbridge, Mrs. Albert Solomon; Cloverdale, Mrs. Robert Wilson; Fillmore, Mrs. Noble Sutherland; Greencastle, Mrs. Frank McKenna; Reelsville, Mrs. Geneva Bartley; and Roachdale, Mrs. Arthur Witt.

The six hundred Girl Scouts in Putnam County require one hundred adult leaders, council members and trainers to effect their program. Not only the Scouts themselves but also the workers pay national membership dues, troop dues, camper fees and buy their own uniforms and insignia.

One out of every five girls in Putnam County from the Brownie Scout age of seven years through high school participates in the Girl Scout program. More would like to join the movement, but there are long waiting lists for the existing troops and areas with no troops at all. The fund drive is necessary to provide training and recruitment for more leaders.

Putnam County is serviced by the Covered Bridge Girl Scout Council and is proud to provide its president, Mrs. Ernest Roth, Bainbridge, and three of its members: Mrs. Charles Johnson, Mrs. Hubert Smaltz and Mrs. Fuller, Greencastle.

President Paul Collett announced the plans to have a sale of Fruit Cakes before Thanksgiving and tickets were handed out to all Lions for the Annual Basketball Booster Dinner to be held in the Bainbridge High School Cafeteria on Oct. 27. It was announced that Coach Angus Nicolson of Indiana Central College would be present to share in that annual great send-off for the "Pointers." This event has grown to be one of the great community affairs in Bainbridge and is again expected to tax the capacity of the school cafeteria.

Sheinwold On Bridge

Guesswork Not Needed
If You Have Patience

By Alfred Sheinwold
One of the nice things about guesswork is that it's no strain on the brain. If you're playing bridge, you can just pull out a card without thinking. Then you wait for your partner to smile appreciatively or groan despairingly.

The groans had it when today's hand was played in a recent rubber bridge game. West got off to a good start by leading his singleton diamond, but he couldn't keep up the pace.

South had a problem at the first trick. If West had led a singleton, the best play was to go right up with dummy's ace. If West had led the top card of a doubleton, the best play was to let East win the first trick.

South made his choice because he had noticed the speed of the lead. A singleton is usually led very quickly; a doubleton, hesitantly. Since West had fired the nine of diamonds right out of his hand, declarer played dummy's ace.

TRUMP PROBLEM
Now South's task was to draw trumps before West could get a ruff. He led the king of spades from dummy, and West won with the ace of spades at once. Then West had to guess how to get the lead to his partner.

West guessed, because of the bidding, that a heart lead was best. As it happened, South had the ace of hearts. He won the heart draw trumps, and gave up a club and a diamond. That's when the groaning started.

If you're picking out a sympathy card to send West for his unlucky guess, save your postage for a better cause. West should not have taken his ace of trumps so quickly. If West refused the first trump trick, East would drop the nine of clubs on the second round of trumps — and then West would know what to lead without having to guess at all.

ANSWER: Bid one spade. You have 14 points in high cards and 2 points for the two doubletons. This is enough for an opening bid of one in a suit. Don't make the mistake of bidding one no trump with your total of 16 points; you count only your high-card points for no trump purposes.

Bible Thought

I was glad when they said into me let us go into the house of the Lord, Psalm 122:1. Tomorrow, will you go into the house of the Lord, happy for such an opportunity? If our going had to be underground, and worship guarded so carefully, would you be strong in your faith as our early Christians. Is it too easy to go to the church of your faith?

Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD UPI—Milton Berle, seen only sporadically on television the past five years, is starring in a new movie and galloping back to video in earnest this season.

Most of Uncle Miltie's time recently has been on the road—nine months a year—play-night clubs. "People who never visit clubs asked me when I was going back to work," Milton said during an off-day from "The Oscar."

"I hope they weren't feeling sorry for me." They needn't have. The comedian was drawing roughly $25,000 per week. Then, of course, there was the $100,000 yearly stipend NBC-TV had been paying him on a contract running from 1951 to 1951.

But Berle chaffed at his absence from television. The contract called for exclusive appearances on NBC, and the network appeared to be disinterested in keeping him busy. They paid him for doing nothing.

So Miltie hired a new agent and renegotiated his NBC contract. He took a 40 per cent pay cut, reducing his annual salary to $60,000 but erased the exclusive clause.

The result: Berle will be seen this season on Dean Martin's show, "Bonanza," "The Fugitive," "The Man From U.N.C.L.E.," "Shatter's People," "The Lucy Show," "The Hollywood Palace" and with Red Skelton and Ed Sullivan.

In the dramatic shows Milton will play straight parts without laughs, just as he is doing at Paramount in "The Oscar."

"I play an agent in the picture," he explained. "Not the cigar-chomping stereotype you seen in so many movies. He's a sensitive guy who does a good job in a dignified way."

"This is the first straight role I ever played in a movie, although I've done some dramatic stuff in five television shows."

Berle was nominated for an Emmy several years ago in "Doyle Against the House," a performance that changed the image of television's first major star.

While Berle is busy portraying unfunny characters on screen, he is still the quipping known about Sullivan.

"I'll be doing the Ed Sullivan show live," he grinned. "At least I'll be live but I don't know about Sullivan."

A Woman's View

By Gay Pauley
NEW YORK UPI—When Ida Rosenthal designed her first bra, flappers were wearing foundations to flatten their chests.

Mrs. Rosenthal went against the trend, introduced the uplift bra with a bit of padding, and started a multi-million dollar business. Today, as she moves toward her 80th birthday, the tiny four feet, 11 inches dynamo of the foundation industry still is adamant on what women want. It is not nudity, she says.

She was asked, weren't trends toward less clothing, exemplified by the above-knee skirts, the fact that many models have been showing clothes bra-less, that the topless bathing suit and the no-bra bra catapulted designer Rudi Gernreich to international fame?

"Well, we haven't had nudity since Eve," said Mrs. Rosenthal. "You can't guarantee what women will do. But I think if it's in the direction of no clothes, this'll take a long, long time."

"I think the industry is not worried..." "Everybody is not a model," said Mrs. Rosenthal. "The women who can go without a bra is the exception."

But, she added sagely, "we'll give the women the variety they want. We have a no-bra bra that does a real job." An all-over net, or lace, nude in color, it is advertised as one which "covers like a blush."

Ida Rosenthal got into the bra and girdle business via dressmaking.

She was born Ida Cohen, on Jan. 9, 1886 in Rakow, near Minsk, in Russia. At 19, she came to America to live with an aunt and uncle in Hoboken, N. J., to work as a dressmaker, and to marry William Rosenthal. She opened a dress shop first in Hoboken, later moving it to fashionable 57th Street in New York.

Foreign News Commentary

By United Press International
The Kashmir war is likely to lead to an anguished reappraisal of the role of the United States as the world's leading arms merchant and donor.

The spectacle of India and Pakistan battling each other with arms they were supposed to use only for defense against communism has brought the problem into sharp focus.

The United States during the past 10 years has given away more than $20 billion in military equipment to more than 50 non-Communist nations, all of whom solemnly pledged it would be used only in self-defense.

Yet a number of the recipients have shown that they fear their own neighbors or, in some cases, their own citizens more than they do the Communists.

In addition, the Defense Department's office for international logistics negotiations — referred to by some diplomats as "the Pentagon's arms peddlers" — has sold foreign countries an estimated $9 billion worth of military equipment during the past four years.

With this amount of U. S. military equipment scattered around the globe, American arms inevitably have figured to some extent in virtually every clash in the non-Communist world.

The Greeks and Turks supplied warring factions in Cyprus with U. S. arms they had received solely for use within the NATO defense framework.

France used U. S. arms in her futile effort to suppress the Algerian rebellion. Some right-wing Latin American dictatorships are alleged to retain power solely on the basis of their American armor and planes.

These and other examples are cited by some congressional and other critics of large-scale military aid as evidence to support their views.

The Senate passed an omnibus farm bill earlier this week, including new programs for wheat, cotton, feed grains, dairy products, rice, and cropland retirement.

One of the key features of the bill was the provision expanding use of direct government support payments to another major crop, cotton.

A spokesman for rural electric co-operatives says the Johnson administration has given notice there will be legislation next year dealing with financing for the co-ops.

The report comes from Clyde T. Ellis, general manager of the National Rural Electric Co-operative Association. Ellis, writing in the association's magazine, notes that his group has just conducted a study of potential new credit sources for rural co-ops, sources which could supplement the present program of federal REA loans.

The study proposed continuation of the present government REA lending program. But it suggested additional government financing for some co-op needs at increased interest rates. It said that some additional needs might be met by raising funds from the commercial money market.

Johnson first announced his intention of setting up such a commission in a message to Congress last February. During debate on the farm bill this week, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, said that action on the matter is expected to come before the end of the month.

Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman claims the Senate's new farm bill is a "significant step forward" in national policy.

In a statement issued Wednesday, Freeman said, "We now have the mechanisms which will provide this nation with the flexibility to adjust its food and fiber production to changes at home and abroad."

The administration, particularly the Pentagon, has counter-arguments which have to be considered. It is contended that if the United States is to make certain its allies will be prepared to react at once against any Communist threat, the "calculated risk" of misuse of the arms must be taken.

In areas outside those covered by formal alliances to which the United States is committed, distribution or sale of American arms is defended on the grounds that if Washington does not supply them someone else will.

Human needs reach beyond food, and house and clothing.

INFIXED

... in the little animal is the inherent, industrious characteristics of self preservation.

A delight to the eye in its graceful movements, but behind its moves, more than the childish eye can see... a desire to keep her bin full of food to guarantee her survival.

We, like the squirrel, must prepare for our future and for those who depend upon us. But human needs reach beyond food, and house and clothing... beyond the physical and the material. We are persons, we are spiritual, our concern is for the mind — the soul — the spirit.

We are social persons whose deeper needs may be satisfied in a church which majors in fellowship and prayer and builds us into a group of good people with common loyalties to God and things of the spirit.

Come with me to church.

You In The Church
The Church In You
— form a combination for good. Every man, woman and child needs the influence of the church. So, come let us go into the house of the Lord. Let us support her program of service to humanity, be a faithful worker, a daily bible reader and attend services regularly.

This message is dedicated to the building of a more spiritual and a greater church going community under the auspices of the Greencastle Ministerial Association and is being sponsored by the following individuals and business firms who want, as their only return, to see more people attending church. The church needs your support. The community needs the church.
